STRONG SWIMMER DROWNS WHEN SEIZED WITH CRAMPS WHILE BATHING IN RIVER

Jeremiah O'Leary of Roscoe Is Tragedy Victim at Elco Sunday—Friends Do Not Reach Him.

MEMBER WELL KNOWN FAMILY

Had Lived in Roscoe for 14 Years, Being Employed There at Globe Mine—Body Recovered by Divers And Funeral Will be Held Tuesday

Swimming in the river at Elco shortly after eating his noonday meal Jeremiah O'Leary, aged 33 years single of Roscoe, was seized with cramps Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and drowned before help could reach him. He was about 50 yards beyond friends and went down the last time while they were swimming to his aid. His body was recovered and brought to the morgue of M. P. Crowley here. Coroner James T. Heffran was notified.

O'Leary was a good swimmer. Shortly after entering the stream he struck out beyond any of the rest of his 15 or 20 companions. When he was about 100 yards out he went down, evidently the victim of cramps. Strong swimmers struck to his aid, but their efforts were futile. His body was recovered by divers.

O'Leary was a member of a well known family that has lived in Roscoe for the last 14 years. He was a miner employed at the Globe mine. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Mary O'Leary, four brothers, John, George, Daniel and Dennis O'Leary of Roscoe and one sister, Mrs. Mary Burke of Carbondale. One brother, John O'Leary is well known because of his activities as an organizer for the United Mine Workers of American.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning with mass at St. Joseph's Catholic church at Roscoe. The body will be taken to Carbondale for interment in St. Rose cemetery.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bamford of Monongahela a triple birthday party was held Sunday in honor to Joseph Bamford, his sister Mrs. Emma Evans and daughter Miss Golda of Charleroi. Out of town guests were present from Pittsburg. Monessen. Charleroi, Brownsville and Donora.

CONTRACTOR AND PARTY ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY IN CAR WRECK

N. W. Cornish and Springer Todd Pinned Beneath Machine, Still Hurts Are Not Especially Serious

N. W. Cornish, of the firm of Brooke and Cornish, now doing paving work here, was injured along with four others who were passengers in his automobile, when it overturned after striking one of his wagons on the way home from Uniontown Friday night. Cornish was the worst injured having a shoulder dislocated and being cut and bruised. Others in the party were James Marshal, C. B. Sullomon, Springer Todd and B. Flannigan, the last two named of Uniontown. All spent the night at the Brownsville hospital, returning to Charleroi Saturday. Cornish and Todd were caught underneath the car when it overturned and help had to be secured before it could be lifted.

BATHING BEACH RECORDS BROKEN

Twelve Hundred Bathers Enjoy Advantages of Local Resort Sunday

BEACH IS WELL PROTECTED

The largest crowd ever accommodated in one day at the Charleroi Bathing Beach is reported to have enjoyed bathing Sunday. Likewise the crowd of visitors at the beach was exceptional, people coming from numerous towns.

Probably 1,200 were in bathing during the day. The afternoon naturally was the popular time for enjoyment of the water and the beach was really crowded. Every bathing suit at the beach was rented out, to say nothing of the scores of private owners who visited the popular resort.

Showing the advantages of a protected bathing resort, three lives were saved. One man was pulled out only after a hard struggle by Lifeguard Howard Ludwig. This individual wanted to go beyond bounds it is said and did, only to go down.

YOUNG PEOPLE PLAN UNION SERVICES DURING AUGUST

Union Young People's services will be held during the Sunday evenings in August according to a program arranged in keeping with union church services. They will precede church services. The first union service will be held next Sunday at the Majestic theatre, now being used by the First Baptist church. The Young People's meeting will begin at 6:45.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hickey returned Saturday from Atlantic City, N. J., where they spent their vacation.

INSTITUTE PROGRAM WILL BE HIGH CLASS

Noted Instructors Engaged for Fourth Annual Tri District Sessions to be Held in Charleroi Last Week in August

Instructors of exceptional ability have been secured for the fourth annual Tri-District Teachers' Institute to be held beginning August 29 and closing Friday, September 1 at the Charleroi high school auditorium. Districts interested are Charleroi, Monongahela and Donora.

Heading the list of instructors is Howard Griggs of New York city, a popular of the speakers at last year's institute held at Donora. Mr. Griggs will lecture on Tuesday evening of the institute week. At that time the soloist for the occasion will be Walter Vaughn, the widely known tenor.

Other speakers secured are Dean William Draper Lewis of the William Penn high school, Philadelphia; Dr. J. B. Ritchie, superintendent of the McKeesport schools; Dr. M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin; Miss M. Cooper, primary worker of the Johnstown schools and Dean W. G. Chambers of the University of Pittsburg school of education.

The Institute will immediately precede the opening of school in the three towns interested. The Charleroi schools will open on Tuesday, September 5.

BOY DROWNS WHILE WADING IN RIVER

Webster Lad Drops Into Hole and Companion Cannot Extricate Him—Body Recovered Five Hours Later by Divers

Wading in the river at the mouth of Turkey Creek at Webster Sunday evening at 7 o'clock Antoni Krutoris, aged 9 years, suddenly struck a hole an dwas drowned in spite of the efforts of his boy companion to pull him out. His body was recovered in several feet of water by divers nearly five hours later.

There is shallow water about the month of the creek and it was in this that the two boys were wading. They were close together and when the Krutoris lad began to sink his frantic screams—caused the other to stretch out his hand to seize him. Slipping from his companion's grasp he sank beneath the water and failed to come to the surface again.

The alarm was spread and diving immediately started. The bottom of the river has a peculiar formation there and the body was difficult to recover. It was dragged out at 11:30.

MONESSEN YOUTH HAS LIMB BROKEN IN BEACH ACCIDENT

John Humick, aged 19 years of Monessen is suffering from a double fracture of his left leg as a result of an accident at the Belle Vernon bathing beach Sunday. There is a rope arrangement there by which divers swing into the water. He tried this but failed to let go. Returning with pendulum like effect he struck the ground with force sufficient to break his left limb in two places. He was taken home where he was attended by physicians.

CLUB ENJOYS MOTOR TRIP TO COYLE'S SHADY GROVE

Composed of ten couples the "Damfino Club" of Charleroi enjoyed a motor trip to Shady Grove park near Uniontown Sunday, where entertainment was provided by Manager R. S. Coyle. The party left at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, arriving at the park about noon. The afternoon was spent there and the trip home was begun at 9 o'clock at night.

FAYETTE CITIAN DISAPPEARS LEAVING FAMILY DESTITUTE

Friends of the family of Jonas Reilly of Fayette City are searching for information as to his whereabouts. Reilly left home two weeks ago, telling his wife he would return for supper. Since he has not been seen. The family of six children is left destitute.

When he disappeared Reilly had only 50 cents in his pocket so far as is known. It is supposed that he made an effort to enlist in the army for border service. The family moved from Roscoe to Fayette City three weeks ago.

13,000 at Shady Grove

Manager R. S. Coyle of Shady Grove park entertained about 13,000 people at the park Sunday, when he presented concerts by the Nirella band and Miss Belle Rush a soloist from Dawson.

Among those arrested were Mike Belocheski, Robert Belocheski, John Buckelosy, J. Sekscenski and Alex Sparack. The police are looking for another. Sparack was arrested Saturday night for drunkenness and fighting and then got into the Sunday affair. Others arrested by the police for various disturbances due it is said to Sunday drinking were Frank Palisch, Frank Lunuski, Clement Perzo, William Osborne, W. Rudwaru and Charley Craig. The police accepted forfeits for the appearance of the various accused malefactors at a hearing before the burgess.

VALLEY GIRL IN FATAL ACCIDENT

Miss Elizabeth Ellwood of Monongahela Hurt When Cousin is Killed

OIL CITY AUTO OVERTURNS

Miss Elizabeth Elwood, daughter of Alderman Elwood of Monongahela Sunday afternoon was injured in an automobile accident at Oil City, in which her cousin, William Weigle a prominent attorney of Venango county was killed and Mr. Weigle's sister, Miss Blanche Weigel, was seriously hurt. The chauffeur, the only other person in the car, escaped uninjured.

Miss Elwood left Monongahela a week ago to visit her relatives. According to a telephone message received from her following the accident the tragic mishap occurred 20 miles from Oil City. Mr. Weigle was driving. The car skidded and overturned and Mr. Weigle was instantly killed. Miss Elwood and Miss Weigle were pinned underneath the machine for half an hour. Miss Weigle is injured internally it is feared.

The car had been the property of Mrs. Minnie Weigle, mother of Mr. Weigle. It had not been used until Sunday since her death which occurred six weeks ago.

DELIVERY CAR DAMAGED TO SAVE IT FROM PLUNGE

The Ford delivery car of P. Calistri, a McKean avenue ice cream manufacturer, was badly damaged on the Belle Vernon hill Sunday when it was run into a telephone pole by driver Jerry Calistri to keep it from tumbling over the hillside. The brakes would not hold. Young Calistri was not hurt.

Italian is Stabbed to Death, Dagger Knife Made From File Being Used by Murderer On His Victim

TWO ITALIANS UNDER ARREST

Act Suspiciously After Frantic Calls Of Dying Man Are Heard—Killing Bears Earmarks of Blackhand Operations—Investigations Started.

Mystery surrounds the murder of Domonick Faldoe, aged 23, an Italian of Newell, Sunday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. The murder ocurred on a Newell street directly in front of Faldoe's boarding house, yet so far as is known there were no witnesses to the deed. News was spread by his frantic screams for help and he was carried into the boarding house, there to expire without telling his story. Jimmie Zito and Tom Lascala, two Italians who boarded at the same house were arrested on suspicion and taken to the Uniontown jail.

Faldoe was employed as a laborer by the Dravo Construction company of Pittsburg now engaged in building work for the General Chemical company at Newell. He had been in Newell only about one month, coming from Scottdale. Since coming he lived an apparently exemplary life and was not known to have any enemies.

The street was deserted when the sensational stabbing occurred. When he was carried, still screaming for help, into his boarding house an effort was made to call a doctor, but the Newell physician was away from town and before one could be summoned from California the man had bled to death. One stab wound showed in his right lung and there was another in his head. Quick escape was made by his assailant.

The instrument used in the stabbing was found nearby to where Faldoe was picked up. It had been made in dagger shape from a file, with both edges sharpened.

Faldoe's body was removed to the rooms of Deputy Coroner Arley Kisinger at Brownsville and investigations started. Zito and Lascala were arrested because of the unusual interest they took in proceedings and in the hope that they knew something of the killing. A theory is uppermost that the crime is a Blackhand affair, since it bears all the earmarks of such.

Mr. Victor Rehula of The Rehula Studio has just returned from Cleveland where he attended the convention of the Photographers Asociation of America. While in Cleveland he selected a large variety of the latest mountings. He also purchased a Campbell flash light machine which is especially adapted for home portrait work. This new machine will permit the making of first class photos at any time or place, regardless of the weather conditions. Mr. Rehula invites inspection of his new mountings. 38-2t

HISTORY STRANGELY RECALLED

The Star-Spangled Banner, [illegible] the R[illegible] by Betsy Ross [illegible] memories and tragedies, has [illegible] strangely made [illegible] moment by an order of the [illegible] partment of Baltimore [illegible] body within that jurisdiction [illegible] stand while playing, singing or rendering the song [illegible] Scott Key immortal. By municipal enactment refusal to pay this debt of reverence and observance incurs a penalty of $100, remarks the Pittsburg Dispatch.

It is amazing that such a municipal law should have been thought necessary and that a police order should command its enforcement. It must seem to have been native and to the manner born in Baltimore, where, let it be most gently said, the initial drops of blood were shed in the memorable activities of the beginning of the Civil war, for the purpose of substituting the Stars and Bars for the Stars and Stripes.

Passing over this lamentable episode, it is cordially recalled that the song of the "Star-Spangled Banner" was composed in the harbor of Baltimore in the shadow of the battlements of Fort McHenry, when it was a question whether the aggressive vessels of Admiral Cockburn would not add a new chapter to a victory won at the time elsewhere, which was celebrated in satirical verse entitled "The Bladensburg Races," when the unprepared American troops, assembled without any such flourish as that which has ordered out our National Guard, were scattered by a small British force, the Capitol and White House looted and burned and the Nation humiliated forever in the pages of history.

For years without formality of municipal enactment or police enforcement, the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" has, by common consent, inspired the rising of audiences and spectators and their standing with uncovered heads, albeit the music is of unknown origin, that of "Anacreon in Heaven," and not the composition of Francis Scott Key or other American. In Pittsburg and in other cities of the country, even in those States which in the '50's trampled the flag in the mire, the initial strains of the lyric are a signal for this act of patriotic adoration. Why should Baltimore make this voluntary reverence ridiculous?

TIME TO CUT WEDS

Weeds grow, no matter what happens. They are not controlled by the weather, one is almost tempted to say, judging by what one sees on the average vacant lot around town. There are places where the crop is a sight to behold. The worst part about it is that they are allowed to grow, says the Beaver Daily Times. Many persons are too busy or for some reason neglect their obligation; so the weeds tower and tower and prove annoying in more ways than one.

After all it is not such a hard job to get rid of them. And they should be cut in double quick time, unless the seed for another elaborate crop is to be sown. Weeds, aside from being unsightly, are harmful. They do not stand for good health. There is no excuse for weeds on any lot in the whole town. That may sound like a pretty bold assertion, but it is true just the same. All that is needed is a scythe, a strong back and a desire to get rid of a nuisance.

Providing Victrolas for patients at three state sanitoriums was a Samaritan kindness for which Charleroi, Donora and Monessen people are to be given credit. Most people look upon a Victrola as a luxury and there are more who cannot afford one than who can. But when it comes to alleviating suffering, as at these state institutions, this wonderful instrument will indeed prove a blessing. It will take pleasure to those who have little enough of this world's enjoyment and make their uncertain lot upon this earth far more cheering.

As the oppressive warmth continues, all the more important becomes the necessity of care in our own living. Heat stroke is only too common and the man once afflicted may never entirely recover. The main thing is to keep cool ourselves, avoiding excitement and to refrain from the use of stimulants. If we do that our heart action is anything like normal we have comparatively little to fear.

Jimmy, an office boy in a downtown office, approached his boss one morning last week:

"If you please, sir."

"Well, Jimmy?"

"My grandmother, sir."

"Aha your grandmother; go on, Jimmy."

"My grandmother and my mother —"

"What? And your mother too. Both very ill, eh?"

"No, sir. My grandmother and my mother are goin' to the baseball game this afternoon and they want me to stay home and mind my little kid bruder."

Jimmy got the afternoon off.

Old Deacon Perkins is a good neighbor but mighty economocal, to put it mildly. He had a bad attack of lumbago and was recommended to a specialist down to Roanoke.

"Is he very expensive?" asked the deacon.

"Well, not so very," was his doctor's answer." He'll charge you $5.00 the first visit and $3.00 for each one after that."

The deacon soon after walked into the specialist's office, planked down $3.00 remarking: "Well, doctor, here I am again."

The physician calmly picked up the money and put it in his pocket. The deacon looked on expectantly awaiting the next move. "Well, I'm ready to be examined," he said at length.

"I don't think it's necessary," replied the shrewd specialist. "There's no necessity of doing it again. Keep right on taking the same medicine. Good day, sir."

Savages and Place Names.

It is very rare that savages give names to extensive lands as a whole, and at first sight this seems surprising. Yet when we reflect that the average savage rarely travels more than 100 miles from his birthplace it is quite natural he should know nothing beyond his personal knowledge.

If savages live on a very large island they are [illegible] with only a small part of it and give names only to those portions with which they are familiar. The largest islands of the Pacific have no native names. No name for the continent of Africa is known among its savage tribes. When told that they live in Africa [illegible] response is that they never heard of such a country.

As a rule, Pacific explorers were careful to [illegible] native names if they could ascertain [illegible] was [illegible] native names [illegible] all the area of the [illegible] because [illegible] other appellations.—Exchange.

Danced In Court.

An unusual scene was once witnessed in a [illegible] tribunal at Nantes. The proprietor of a local theater had engaged a young lady dancer whose performances at rehearsals did not come up to his expectations. He therefore would not let her appear, and the fair dancer took action against him for breach of contract. The defendant alleged that she had not even learned the first steps of her art, and, here being a plain issue, the judge determined to decide for himself. A space was accordingly forthwith cleared on the floor of the court, and in these unusual surroundings the young lady duly went through her steps and pirouettings. In the result the judge felt justified in certifying that she was quite an expert dancer and decided the case in her favor. Henceforth she advertised herself as the only dancer in the country with a legal certificate of proficiency.

How Leap Year Started.

Hampson in his "Medii OEVI Kalandarium" quotes the following quaint tradition from an old Saxon treatise: "Some assert that the bissextus or leap day comes through this, that Joshua prayed to God that the sun might stand still for one day's length that he might sweep the heathen from the land that God had granted him and his followers. It is true that the sun did stand still for one day's length over the city of Gebaon, but the day went forward in the same manner as other days. And the bissextus is not through that, as some do think."

In France and some parts of Spain and Portugal there exists a tradition known as "the ghost of leap year." Believers in this say that a marvelous monster annually appears on leap day and disarranges human affairs for the remainder of the year.

Bells In Ireland.

A peculiar interest attaches to the bells which tourists and collectors find in Ireland. It is said that it was St. Patrick who taught the monks and craftsmen how to make bells after he had gone to the Emerald Isle in 440. Many of the early bells remain and are examples of exquisite decoration. A copy of the bell cover of St. Patrick is now in the South Kensington museum and is a perfect example of Celtic art, while the silver bell of St. Mora, in the Wallace collection, is hardly less interesting. It is of a unique style, with its filigreed ornaments plaited and twisted and interlaced.—Exchange.

Rebuked.

The persevering landscape painter knew that he had an observer looking over his shoulder at the easel. He knew from the rustle of skirts that the observer was a woman; yet he worked steadily on. Presently the observer spoke.

"A charming landscape," she said.

"Ah, you flatter me," said the artist modestly. "Compared with the original landscape it is very poor stuff."

"I meant the original," said the observer.—New York Times.

A Puzzled Student.

Little Ethel had just returned from Sunday school and was looking very puzzled.

"Mamma," she said, "did they have very large beds in Bible days?"

"I don't know, dear," said her mother. "Why do you ask?"

"Because," said the little girl, "our teacher said today that Abraham slept with his four fathers."

When Editors Were Doctors.

Keene's Bath Journal was one of the oldest weekly newspapers in the provinces. Known as the Bath Journal, it was founded in 1742 by Thomas Boddeley, whose portrait in wig and ruffles, by Hoare, forms a picturesque reminder of the period. His daughter married John Keene, the journal from this union passing on to and through a succession of Keenes; hence its title Keene's Bath Journal.

As was the custom in bygone days patent medicines were sold in provincial newspaper offices, and the drawers in which the pills and medicines were kept at the Journal office were there until the paper suspended. It was nothing unusual for the editor in the throes of writing his editorials to have to step down from his seat to serve a box of pills.

The pages of the Journal were for a long period largely taken up by advertisements of various "cure alls."—London Times.

Arsenic In the Hair.

New light has been thrown on the legal side of arsenic poisoning. It has been found that arsenic compounds are absorbed by the hair of living persons, though not absorbed after death. In the hair of man arsenic has been known to reach a concentration of one to five parts in 100,000. The deposit takes place in the hair after it has been absorbed by the abdominal organs—liver and kidneys in particular. Therefore, in case of acute, quick, poisoning, a chemical analysis of the hair would show no arsenic, while it would be found in the liver and kidneys. On the other hand, if slow arsenic poisoning was suspected, analysis would show arsenic in the hair, but not in the liver and kidneys, and it could safely be assumed that the poisoning was not recent. The legal value of such evidence is apparent.—Scientific American.

The Stork's Lazy House Building.

The most interesting sight in the Rotterdam zoo was the stork, whose nest is set high on a pinnacle of the buffalo house. He was building in the leisurely style of the British workingman. He would negligently descend from the heavens with a stick. This he would lay on the fabric and then carefully perform his toilet, looking around and down all the time to see that every one else was busy. Whenever his eye lighted on a toddling child or a perambulator it visibly brightened. "My true work!" he seemed to say. "This nest building is mere by-paths of industry." After drinking and overlooking and congratulating himself thus for a few minutes he would stroll off over the housetops for another stick. He was unquestionably a king of the garden.—Lucas in "A Wanderer In Holland."

Her Only Criticism.

Little Dorothy not only liked her tea and coffee to have the appearance of being "real and truly," but she also liked to taste the flavor of each. One afternoon her mother took her to a friend's home, where tea was served at 5 o'clock.

The hostess gave to Dorothy what she usually gave to her own children, of Dorothy's age—viz, hot water, sugar and milk. Dorothy tasted hers politely and ate her little cakes.

"Why, Dorothy, you aren't drinking your tea, dear. Isn't it sweet enough?" asked the hostess.

"Yes, Mrs. C., it's sweet enough," replied the child.

"Then why aren't you taking it?"

"It's too dull," she replied. — New York Times.

George's Birthday.

The date of Washington's birthday was, according to the calendar at the time of his birth, Feb. 11. This became Feb. 22 when the Gregorian calendar was adopted in 1752. The first place to use the new date in celebrating the event is said to have been Newport, R. I. As late as 1788 Washington himself apparently used the old style in referring to his birthday. His diary for that year has this entry: "Feb. 11 went up to Alexandria to the celebration of my birthday. Many maneuvers were performed by uniform corps and an elegant ball and supper at night."

Expressiveness.

"How is your boy Reub getting along with his books?"

"First rate," replied Farmer Alf Alfa. "He's learned a whole lot."

"Knows more than you do, I bet."

"I won't say that. But he kin tell me a lot of the things I already know in language I can't understand."—San Francisco Call.

He Beat Her to It.

"Belle, are you going to marry that pinhead you were with at the dance last night?"

"Yes, if he doesn't change his mind."

"Don't be too certain about it. He changed it about me, but I was about to do the same thing about him."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Natural Instincts.

"That callow youth acts as if the world depended on his choice of clothes."

"Well, in his salad days it is perfectly natural for a man to be particular about his dressing."—Baltimore American.

Different Classes.

"I fear she's too high for me."

"Different walks of life, eh?"

"Not walks exactly. But she's in the limousine class, and I'm only in the runabout."—Pittsburgh Post.

Decision of character will often give an inferior mind command over a superior.—Wirt.

What We Know And Do Not Know About Infantile Paralysis

By SAMUEL G. DIXON, M. D.
Commissioner of Health.

WITH the history of the world's workers on Poliomyelitis and the results of our own work before us we have to acknowledge that THE GERM OF THIS DISEASE HAS NOT BEEN FOUND, and further, that we do not know how the disease is communicated from one person to another.

There is no medicine or specific that will prevent it or cure it. DON'T LOSE YOUR HEAD! Avoid patent medicines—they do harm. Call in your family physician if you get sick; he will not tell you he has a remedy that is a sure cure, and any one who does, lies. Long attentive treatment under a good doctor of medicine, and helped if possible by a good nurse, will in many cases bring the child back to health.

There is not as much paralysis as commonly believed. The reports of the outbreak in New York seem to establish this. On the 13th of July New York reported 1,600 cases of Poliomyelitis, but only 403 of paralysis. Until we know more about that which produces the disease and how it is communicated from one person to another we, with our present knowledge, STRENUOUSLY RECOMMEND the following precautions:

All excepting the doctor and the one nursing the person sick of the disease must keep out of the room set aside for the patient. If possible keep children out of the neighborhood in which the disease prevails.

Keep all insects out of houses, particularly flies. GUARD FOOD STUFFS FROM FLIES. Flies may carry the disease.

Feed children on cooked food as much as possible.

See that the outside of bread or biscuits is kept clean and away from flies. Wagons, trucks, etc., carrying bread should not be kept in horse stables.

Screen your houses and baby coaches or cribs or beds when the house is not fully screened.

The Department has literature on this subject which you can get upon written request.

THIS DEPARTMENT IS IN CONSTANT WARFARE TO PROTECT OUR PEOPLE FROM DISEASE. TO ACCOMPLISH THE BEST RESULTS WE MUST NOT ONLY HAVE THE CONFIDENCE OF OUR PEOPLE BUT INDIVIDUAL AND PUBLIC CO-OPERATION.

Was It the Guardian Angel?

By F. A. MITCHEL

Per[illegible] and Ar[illegible] St[illegible] broth[illegible] [illegible] when [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] closed [illegible]. That [illegible] the G[illegible] [illegible] that they [illegible].

O[illegible] evening, when the Germans were pushing the [illegible] toward Lille, the regiment with which the Stewart [illegible] served made a stand. The Stewarts were in the same company [illegible] shoulder to shoulder. Percival was two years older than Arnold and kept an eye on his brother, dreading every instant to see him fall to the [illegible]. Presently [illegible] he feared came to pass. Arnold fell, literally torn to pieces by a bursting shell.

Maddened at the sight, Percival pushed forward, but the stand of the British was only a temporary one, and the order was given to fall back. The young soldier, exasperated at not being permitted to wreak his vengeance on those who had killed his brother, refused to retreat and, remaining behind, continued to fire at the enemy. But presently, seeing blood on one of his hands, he knew that he had been hit and followed his comrades.

By this time darkness had fallen, and Stewart saw the retreating British line through the gloaming. They were to make a lengthy retreat this time, for the French were being pushed back rapidly, and the British, who were on their flank, had a greater distance than they to go to keep the alignment. Percival was marching some 300 yards behind them. The enemy on that part of the field had thrown forward skirmishers to harass their retreat.

Percival trudged along, following the men ahead of him, at times trying to catch up with them. He had been shot in the arm, but fortunately the artery had not been cut, for in this case he would have bled to death. His mind was on the brother he had lost, and neither his condition nor his surroundings engaged his attention.

Stragglers were hurrying past him, and he was passing stragglers. The former were in better condition than he, and the latter were mostly more severely wounded. But there was one who neither seemed to gain nor lose on Percival. He was in Percival's rear and a couple of yards behind him. How Percival became conscious of the man's presence he did not know, for he heard no sound coming from his follower. He was simply conscious that some one was behind him. Turning, he saw through the darkness what appeared to be a person. Whether he was old or young, soldier or citizen, Stewart could not tell. He only knew that some one was there.

The soldier trudged on, or, rather, staggered on, for by this time he was very weak from loss of blood. Now and again a bullet whistled past him, sent by some skirmisher, but none came dangerously near him. Twice during the retreat he looked back and both times saw his shadower in the same relative position as before. Once when he turned a flash from a distant cannon slightly increased his vision, and he saw the person behind him a trifle more clearly.

For an instant there was a flash of joy in his heart, for from the glimpse he got of the person's face it seemed to be that of his brother, Arnold. But he had seen his brother blown to atoms, and he knew this could not be. Nevertheless, from the time of this instantaneous view he became impressed that there was some connection between this figure and Arnold.

Presently, when the skirmish line was passing so near the British line as to harass them with scattered shots, the Englishmen sent back a small force to drive back their followers. This line passed Percival, dashed in among the German skirmishers and drove them back upon their own main force.

Percival, who was now safe with his own comrades, looked for the man who had been trudging behind him. He had vanished.

On reaching the British lines Stewart found himself among those who had been near him on the retreat.

"Who was the fellow behind you?" asked a man who had traveled near him.

"Directly in my rear?"

"Yes."

"Did you see any one?"

"I did, and he got between you and a German just in time to save you from a bullet. The German was about to fire, but lowered his piece. There wasn't much light, and I judged that he was afraid of killing one of his own men."

Stewart asked no more questions. What he thought was the result of feeling rather than reason. It was far stronger than reason. Indeed, no one could persuade him that the spirit of his brother had not followed him and protected him from death.

During the past half century the belief in the guardian angel has greatly deteriorated. This is simply because there has been so much of the marvelous in science that it has overshadowed all that is inexplicable by nature's laws. But our knowledge of these laws is infinitesimal. There are those today who are looking for some scientific connection with those who have passed into the great unknown.

NORTHERN AFRICA.

Where Once the Ancient Romans Ruled in Wealth and Splendor.

It is not generally realized that during the early centuries of our era the Roman pro-consular province of Africa rivaled Italy itself in wealth and brilliancy and that in what are now Tunisia and Algeria there exist Roman ruins that [illegible] in number, splendor and state of preservation with those to be found anywhere else.

The [illegible] of Carthage in 146 B. C. led the Romans to establish themselves in North Africa, at first in a modest settlement, the purpose of which was [illegible]. [illegible] themselves, however, [illegible] the site and built [illegible] that became the third in the empire.

The [illegible] of their rule was forced on the somewhat unwilling Romans. To protect their settlement against the [illegible] Phoenicians, Libyans and Berbers they found it [illegible] along the littoral to the west and the south into the [illegible] between the Tell Atlas and the Sahara Atlas and even well into the desert itself, till a good part of what are now Tripoli, Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco was ruled by them.

The country was much more extensively cultivated and thickly populated than at present and for centuries was the principal granary of Rome. After lasting for nearly six centuries Roman rule in North Africa was brought to an end by the invasion of the Vandals from Spain and their capture of Carthage in 439 A. D.—Argonaut.

DEEP BREATHING.

It Freshens Up the Whole System and Kills That Tired Feeling.

Deep breathing does more than benefit the lungs. Physiologists tell us that the great advantage is that it gives the liver a healthy squeeze. All organs in the abdominal cavity as well as the liver are apt to get overcharged with blood from careless habits of sitting. A relaxed sitting position causes the abdominal muscles to relax so that blood runs into this part of the body like water, and it accumulates like a stagnant pool.

The blood needed in the brain is down in the liver. The condition produced led the ancients to refer to a man with the blues as a hypochondriac, which means, literally, down under the ribs. Today we speak of the condition as being down in the mouth because the lines of the face are pulled down.

Melancholy is due to a congested condition of the liver and other organs depriving the brain of blood necessary to keep up the normal balance of activity. When one is tired or feels the dejected feeling coming on, relief can be obtained by lying on the floor with a pillow under the middle of the back and taking a few long, deep breaths.

If the arms are thrown over the head and a dozen deep breaths are taken, a new spirit will come into the brain. Sometimes this is done automatically, as when we throw up the arms and straighten up after a crouched position at a desk.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Made a Difference.

Little Willie became slightly indisposed, and when the family doctor was called he prescribed some medicine in powder form.

"Come, Willie," said the fond mother, preparing one of the powders as soon as the medicine arrived from the drug store, "you must take this right away so that you will be well."

"No, I don't want to take it," whined Willie, backing away from the dose. "I don't need no medicine."

"Why, Willie," pleaded mother, gently drawing the boy toward her, "you never heard me complain about a little powder, did you?"

"No, an' neither would I," was the startling rejoinder of Willie, "if I could just put it on my face, like you do, but I have to swallow it."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Curious Effects of Tea and Coffee.

A condition resembling true color blindness sometimes follows the excessive use of coffee. It is probable that tea also will produce this condition, since both contain the same active principle, although cases of tea color blindness are comparatively rare. It has been observed, however, that both tea and coffee may affect the eyesight and even cause actual blindness. Such blindness is not usually complete, or permanent, and if the use of the harmful beverage is discontinued, normal sight will gradually return.—Exchange.

Between Girls.

"How can you be engaged to a man who is sixty years old? He has, however, given you some magnificent presents."

"That's the point. A first love is romantic, but a last love is very lavish."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Good Curriculum.

"So your daughter Jane has returned from college. Has the school a good curriculum?"

"Oh, yes: Jane had a special suit made for it an' exercised there every day on the horizontal bars."—Florida Times-Union.

FIRST GAME IS TAKEN BY MONONGAHELA CLUB

Hard Slugging Responsible for 13 to 5 Victory Over Steel Products

BINGLES COME IN BUNCHES

By slugging the ball when slugging meant runs the Monongahela Independents Saturday afternoon at Charleroi defeated the Pittsburg Steel Products club in the first of their series for the valley championship. The score was 13 to 5.

It seemed the game was won in the first inning. Mananger Regester of the Steel Products sent in "Zip" Sloane to pitch. Evidently Sloane was not used to batters like the McGintys and company and felt a little apprehensive. Anyhow Hugh McGinty, first up, singled and Vic did the same. C. McCinty went first on fielder's choice. White went out at first and Davis clouted one to the river for a home run. Weigel tripled and a little later came home on a passed ball. The total of this disturbance was four hits and four runs, but it took the life out of things and put the Steel Products on the defense.

Lane was sent to the mound by Monongahela. He was invincible—modestly admitted it himself—but when the affair was over 14 hits had been chalked against him. The trouble was they were not well bunched. In the first the Steel Products tallied one. Gene Elliott tapped out a single that brought a look of pain to Lane. McDowell was safe on a fielder's choice. Russell struck out. Joe Guder singled and Fred Guder singled, with the one run being brought in.

In the third inning Monongahela scored one. White won a base on an error, went third on a passed ball and scored on a fielder's choice. In the fourth two more were chased across the pan on two hits, one a two bagger and a base on balls. C. McGinty and White did the scoring. Monongahela scored three in the fifth. Stankus secured a walk. Jenkins went down on a fly. Lane singled and H. McGinty flew to left. Vic McGinty singled and a score came in. Callie McGinty tripled and two other scores came across. There was the total number in the sixth. Weigle wiggled to first on an error and kept on wiggling till he got to second. He stole third and came home on Jenkins homer to middle. Lane hit a homer and that was all.

The Pittsburg Steel Products got two in the sixth. F. Guder singled and promptly stole second. Courtley were honestly won. Rivers hit out a safe bingle. Parks flew to left. Elliott tapped the ball gently and was safe at first while Rivers was caught at second. He scored on McDowell's double. McDowell scored on Russell's single.

Three pitchers were used by the Steel Products, with McDowell being the most effective of all. Monongahela came with their hitting clothes on and the magnetic attraction of their bats and that ball was too stiff for contact to be broken. Score:

CORKING CONTEST GOES TO FILBERT

McIlvaines Charleroi Babes Drop Great Game to Coke Regions Team

ARE UNABLE TO BUNCH HIT

In a corking good game at Filbert Saturday the Charleroi Babes lost through their inability to bunch hits off Queen, a sterling pitcher of that coke town. The score at the end of the affair was 2 to 1.

Charleroi got their only score of the whole game in the eighth inning. Scheiler won a base on balls. He was followed by Protin, who singled. McIlvaine who was playing first base, and who this season is hitting the ball like a phenom, hit out a single. Scheiler scored. Schafer singled, but it wasn't much use since the next man up went down.

The first of the two Filbert runs was tallied in the second inning on two hits, one of them a double. In the eighth Filbert came across with another one in much the same way. Queen doubled and waited on base until Parzack singled.

The game came near coming in Charleroi's direction in the fifth inning, when Claybaugh led off with a double. Queen tightened up and not another thing was doing, in spite of fled out. Dent singled and Guder came home. Dent was caught at second. Rivers won a base on an error and traversed to third on another error and Elliott's single, then stole home while Elliott busied himself messing the visitors up with the ball at first. In the eighth two more scores all the efforts of the Charleroi sluggers. Score:

FOUR DOCTORS DISAGREED

Pains Disappeared After Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wilmington, Del.—"I was suffering from a terrible backache and pains in my side, with bearing down pains and was very nervous. I was always tired, always drowsy, never could get enough sleep and could not eat. I had four doctors and each told me something different. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I got good results and I now feel better than I have felt for years and I am gaining in weight. I can gladly recommend it to all women."—Mrs. GEORGE W. SEBOLD, 1611 West 4th Street, Wilmington, Del.

Backache and bearing down pains are danger signals which every woman should heed. Remove the cause of these aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that good old root and herb medicine. Thousands of women have testified to its virtues.

For forty years it has been making women strong, curing backache, nervousness, ulceration and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pain.

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. confidential, Lynn, Mass.
